A Week at the JCC

Last week, Lorelei went to the JCC for camp. The first day, she stayed there until 6 o'clock, but the rest, except for Friday, she stayed until 5:30. She made a friend and gave that friend her Mom's phone number. On Thursday, they made you wear your masks all day, except for when you were outside, in the pool, and eating or drinking. Friday, they were sent home early because one of the kids had the Coronavirus.

Broken Heads and Broken Monitor

Lorelei and her wonderful Daddy have been bonding over the perfect video game, Tekken 3. Lorelei is surprisingly good at this game, and she often beats her poor, old, pitiful Dad. However, sometimes, Dad gets lucky and almost wins one round. This shocks Lorelei so much that she physically assaults her meek father. At one point, Dad even won one round, and Lorelei smashed Daddy's head into his favorite monitor before tossing his lifeless body into the creek. -EC

I Taught I Taw a Puddy Tat!

In the beginning, they were planning on creating a Coyote and Road Runner movie, and then, they thought it would be a lot of drawings. Too much, you could say! So Lorelei and Eric had the idea of making a Sylvester and Tweety movie!

So Lorelei went upstairs and she got yellow pants and a yellow shirt on. She went downstairs, and her Dad told her to get some orange socks. She put on some orange socks. Then Dad went and put on a white shirt, black pants, and black jacket. They started to make the movie!

Sometimes Dad complained about what Lorelei was doing, but they finally got the filming done and Lorelei went to take a shower. While Lorelei was taking her shower, Dad edited the movie. Lorelei went to bed before the editing was done. Mom saw the movie at midnight, and Dad woke up Lorelei to show her the finished product!

The movie is hilarious! Lorelei's favorite part is the big explosion.
